BUYER & FORMULATOR INFORMATION

A practical checklist for selecting and evaluating botanical ingredients.

Before placing an order

Check	What to confirm
Product identity	Confirm botanical or chemical name, plant part, ingredient form and grade.
Technical specification	Review appearance, odour, composition, concentration and relevant physical properties.
Quality documents	Request a batch-specific Certificate of Analysis (COA) and Safety Data Sheet (SDS), where applicable.
Traceability	Confirm batch/lot number, source, origin and manufacturing or processing details.
Intended application	Check suitability, permitted use levels and regulatory requirements for the target product and market.
Packaging & storage	Confirm pack size, container compatibility, shelf life and supplier storage recommendations.

How to discuss your requirement

For a product enquiry, share the product name, intended application, required grade, target quantity, destination market and documentation requirements. This helps establish whether the requested material is suitable and available.
